Customer Reviews

Bob Gilsdorf is a third-generation woodworker who is active in the Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, and Young Life organizations. He lives in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

After looking through the projects with the kids, we decided on the card thrower because of its simplicity. Basically just 2 boards, some dowel and not much precision required. We cranked it out together in about an hour. Then we had a blast throwing cards all over the garage and then in the house. The kids decorated it with markers (allowing some down-time for Dad) and were then playing a game trying to hit the door with a card. Overall, based on one project, the book had great value--reading, building, decorating, and playing. It was well worth the cost. I appreciate a book that the kids want to read and look at. There are several more very simple projects, and then they step up a little for the skill level. We'll be ready by then. The plans are easy to read and the exploded diagrams make it easy to see how everything goes together. I like the creativity of the projects even if we don't get around to making them.

satisfied

Excellent Seller, excellent product!

Like to make kids smile you found the book you need. This book has toys easy to make that are just fun. Give it a try if you are new or an expert you wont go wrong there is something for everyone here.

This book is ok but I was disappointed. Not as many patterns or really creative ideas compared to his first book

OK, but not terrific.

as stated

Excellent book. Fun toys for children and very detailed plans for each project.
