Mona Hodgson is the author of nearly 30 children's books and also writes 19th century historical fiction. In addition to writing and speaking, Mona likes to read mysteries and love stories, hike Arizona, travel to Africa, play table games, and play Wii Tennis. She lives in central Arizona where she spies roadrunners, quail, cottontail rabbits, and even an occasional skunk in her yard. ^ ^

My 4 year old daughter loves these books. I like that they have a good message. This edition has the best illustrations in my opinion.

My daughter loves the princess twins books and this one has a great message about asking God for courage when you are afraid.

Such a sweet book. My 2 year loves it!

Not sure about the good twin bad twin concept. We have twins, which is why I bought the books, and thankfully they both want to be the good twin.

My 3 year old daughter loved this book and the cute pics. I liked the Christian theme and simple story.

This is a thinly veiled lousy Christian sermon. Two princesses have a puppy that they actively ignore. It runs away. They can't find it anywhere. They have to pray to Jesus for the strength to look in their castle's scary basement. There is no justification that the basement should be scary just that "basements are scary" places. This seems like a good way to introduce the superstition that basements are scary places. Then when they find the puppy in a box in the basement they thank Jesus for making them brave enough to go into the basement rather than asking Jesus why he allowed the puppy to be put in a freaking box in the basement. Nor do they explore why the princesses mistreated their poor puppy to begin with. There is a passage from Deuteronomy quoted on the first page. Look if you want religious material in your kid's library go for it but this book should be more clearly identified as gospel and the story could be way, way better. The lesson here is that mistreat your animals because Jesus will come help you find it in the scary basement where puppies get locked into boxes. It's just a weird book.

I have a 4 year old aspiring princess so this story was very fun for her. She is not ready for "reading" yet but she was very cute as she "read" and was point to the words on the page. The book was very good timing as we will be bringing our new puppy home at the end of May. I love that the story does bring back to a serious issue for many kids, being scared of the dark. The other night I was walking up the stairs and the lights were off and my daughter said, "Mom we don't have to be scared because Jesus is with us." My heart melted and I agreed with her! :)
