National Geographic Readers: Wolves

Synopsis

They run in packs, stalk their prey, and howl at the moon. And no matter where you are— they're always lurking somewhere nearby. Wolves, the predatory puppy dogs of the wild, are feared and loved by people everywhere. But are they misunderstood? In this fascinating level 2 reader, you'll learn that there's much more to being a wolf than most people could ever believe. Did you know that each pack has a pecking order? That wolves can "talk" to each other using body language? Or that they're actually not out to attack humans, they usually leave people well enough alone? Full of incredible photographs and interesting information, Wolves will appeal to all kids.

LAURA MARSH is a long time contributor to National Geographic Children Books. She has written a large number of books in National Geographic Readers series and also in Mama Mirabelle and Toot and Puddle series.

I work on a school bus and use books to help kids pass the time till we reach where we are going. I have two wolf books on my bus for kids 5 to 10 years of age. One is Wolves for kids and the other is this one National Geographic Wolves. They like this one better because the Photo's are better and there was more too it. I am slowly getting more books like this one for them and looking forward to seeing their smiles when they see the new books.

purchased as a Christmas gift for my 8 year old who loves wolves.. my daughter reads 2 levels above her grade, and i feel safe in saying that she will still enjoy this book and the facts in it. I feel confident purchasing a book from the Smithsonian for her in hopes that she may learn something new about her favorite animal. The pictures are good, and the reading is fairly easy. I like the different formatting of the reading - quizzes, facts, etc. It is not just a straight read from beginning to end. I was worried this would be too easy for my daughter however upon seeing this book in person, I am confident she will be able to learn something new and enjoy the book all at the same time.

Great little book for a wolf loving granddaughter. We love that it is from National Geographic, so we know it is of quality.

If your child is 5-8, then this is the intended age of this short book. Some of the reviewers here said it was for too little of kids and their older children didn't like it. The description clearly says this is for ages 5-8, so if you're buying it for a ten or twelve year old, be prepared for a bored and disinterested kid. Great pictures and not too much highly detailed information, our daughter has read it probably 200 times, no exaggeration. This was a distant second but a much safer option than her first birthday pick, and actual live wolf. We have bought these National Geographic readers before and have always been happy.

My daughter received this for her fifth birthday and loves it. She is obsessed with wolves right now so all the pictures and great facts are right up her alley.

You never get tired about reading things about Wolves.

I love the National Geographic Readers series but this book is a bit graphic for my 4 yr old daughter who is reading. I've put it away until she's a bit older.
