Rusty Hammer was diagnosed with an aggressive form of leukemia in 2003. He has succeeded in political life and as a non-profit, and corporate. Hammer currently serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the National Marrow Donor Program. He and his wife, Pamela, live in San Jose, California.

Loved it so much! amusing and effective Its design makes me very comfortable to use. I really like this product and I think it is very suitable for my needs, the price and the value is also very match. These are wonderful! will purchase products from this company again, as needed.

I met Rusty in Fall of 2007, when he worked with a group at Los Gatos High School (CA) putting on Wit, the Pulitzer Prize winning play about a 50 year old professor of John Dunne, who is diagnosed with stage IV ovarian cancer. His humility, yet passion for life and continued willingness to give amazed me. I bought his book during his first book signing event, and read it right after that. It was like the man in person, full of transparency, openness about the tough road he travelled, and very useful advice for fellow travelers. When I went to his memorial, the auditorium was filled to capacity with people he touched through all stages of his life. A little more than a year later I was diagnosed with a cancer not quite as difficult as his, but the road is not an easy one. I reread his book, and it is always by my bedside, more poignant than ever. It gives both practical advice, and shares his spirit of hope and saying 'yes' to life. I would unreservedly recommend it to anybody interested in what cancer is like from a patient perspective, and how to deal with it both practically and spiritually written in a clear and direct, yet personal way.

Rusty's book is a candid account of his experience living with cancer. It reflects his spirit and enthusiasm for life. Rusty lived every day to its fullest until he passed away on January 28th, 2008. He will be missed but will live on through this fabulous story.
